PULL UP

Not only were we going north, but the entire continent was also nearing the winter season. The cold could be fatal, especially for someone who's still recovering. Unfortunately, winter clothing is expensive, so I couldn't ask Anne to give me some... I did have Reszurre try on my things, but as you'd expect, they were too large for her. We will have to stop by the city and buy her something...

...
Uh...

...Um mm...

The letter from my friend said, "All right, sounds interesting, so I'll play around with her. Not for free, though. Got that? I'm sure you have plenty saved up." He is a little weird, but his skill as a doctor is undeniable. I don't have any other options if I want Reszurre's limbs healed.

He lives further up in the north, and even using portals or scroll transportation would take at least five days just to get there. Reszurre seemed like she could handle the trip, but since we'd be gone for a while, I had to put away all valuables and dangerous chemicals into a sealed storage. I did leave medicine and first aid guides in the open, though.

SEALED STORAGE: ONLY THE OWNER CAN OPEN.

Rrring...

...It's... a little too warm...

...
Ah!!

Sorry for being such a cheapskate, Reszurre! I'll reflect on it... Now, let's write a reply and hurry up with the preparations...
